I will. For now it looks like they did finally get the fire suppression system approved. They need a final fire life safety inspection and CUPA inspection. We are following up on code to make sure they are in compliance. I am waiting to hear from AQMD, and I understand they have a way to go with DOGGR.

Neither Jeremy nor I have heard anything on our end. Please keep us informed of what you find out and we'll do the same. Thanks.

Good morning, it has been a while since I last spoke with you both about this case. I have recently learned that Allenco is significantly closer to restarting. I am following up with their permits locally as well as DOGGR. Do you have any updates or information on your end?

Best,
JBB
